EXTRACTS FROM REVIEWS.

From the "Straits Times," July 27, 1868. Some time ago we had occasion to remark upon the progress that Literature as represented by the Press had made and was making in the East, and our attention has again been called to the publicet by the receipt of a Hongkong publication which deserves some notice and which we have much pleasure in introducing to the knowledge of our readers. We allude to Note and Queries on thina and Japan, published monthly by Mr Saint, the proprietor of the China Mail newspaper. This publication is well printed on good paper, and in size and shape is very like its well-known namesake or prototype at home, and is equally a mine containing very curious and useful information regarding the language, literature, history, manners and customs of the Chinese and in a less degree of the Japanese. It says a good deal for the extent and stability of the footing of Europeans in China, that such a publication as this should be established and conducted with apparently successful vigour. The publication is altogether a very in teresting one, and wishing it every success we commend it to the attention and support of our readers.

(From the "Friend of India," June 4, 1868.) We acknowledge with thanks the receipt the numbers for the current year of 'Notes and Queries," a most deserving Anglo-Chinese monthly, edited by Mr N. B. Dennys, whose "Treaty Ports of China and Japan" are so well known. From the names attached to the "Notes" we can see that the contributors include some of the best Chinese scholars in the East. Its interest is not confined to China, and it will be of valuable assistance to all scholars, who have directed their attention towards the subject of Buddhism and its literature, and generally to all who are interested in oriental antiquities. It deserves to be better

HONGKONG, SATURDAY, AUG. 14, 1869 CURIOSITY has been naturally much excited to learn what official arrangements will be made to welcome H. R. H the Duke of Edinburgh on his visit to this Colony. That the public are determined to do their part may be gathered from the fact that the orders received for illuminations and transparencies by those who deal in such matters, amounts to the and sixteen thousand dollars. As an event in our local history which is not The following paragraphs are from the likely to again occur within the experience of present residents, it was to be expected that we should not be found wanting in real, if not very demonstrative, loyalty. We are, however, agreeably disappointed to find that Hongkong river, carrying in the aggregate over 4,000 is not likely to be behind its neighbours in ontward manifestations of the cordiality with which a son of Queen Victoria will be received, and it but remains for told. mane to our habits and tastes, than in the amount of native music to be inflicted upon their visitors and themselves during the Duke's stay. It is, we believe in tended that the opening of the City Hall shall form the first public act of Hall Highness, who may probably hold his general levee within the building A ball and supper will, in the natural order of such events, follow, it being paid for by subscription as regards the sterner sex, ladies and a certain number of guesta being invited by the Committee. The figure fixed is stated to be $15 per had a sum which, though beyond that at first proposed, is simply fixed on the ground that otherwise a sufficient amount cannot be collected from the small bedy of foreigners here :- just as local papers are compelled by their limited circulation to charge 25 cents for the familiar penny of the London streets. Internal decorations will add to the effect of the build. ing, and it is whispered that both the English and German Dramatic Corps intend to give representations while the Dake is staying in the Colony.

Though, as may be easily supposed arrangements which involve such an outturn on the part of the Colonists are not made in a day, we have reason to believe that it will be practicable before very long to give the public a programme of what is to take place with sufficient accuracy to enable any omission or defects to be remedied and give time for thorough preparation on the part of those upon whom will devolve the chief labours of the time. It is to be honed however, that all will bear in mind tratly the great difficulty of dealing with di. verse elements so as to shake them down into one harmonious whole, and secondly that, when Chinese workmen are in any way concerned in the practical part of entertainments of the nature before us. the difficulty is much increased.

The Hon. H. B. Keswick, Hon. H. B. Gibb, Hon. E. H. Pollard, and Meers Whyte, Rowett, and Menke, form the Reception Committee elected by the General Committee of the City Hally but we are not in possession of the names of those forming the Official Committee We may be sure, however, that those mentioned will leave no efforts wanting perfect as the resources at their command permit.

the Court of Queen's Bench illustrates in a quaint way the dangers which heset those journalists or magazine writers who incautiously use the names of living men. Perhaps our attention is the more directed to it from the fact that not very long since a correspondent who alluded to a legal matter got us into serious trouble scarcely heard of, and in whose quarrels we had not the remotest ambition to interfere, persisted in considering that the sentence we printed referred to him. The Cornhill Magazine was the defendral Plantagenet Harrison was the plaintiff. St. Stephen's Mission Charel. - (Ser. ART RANBLES IN SHETLAND. By John T. Reid. Edinburgh : Edmonston Douglas, 1869

The beautiful little quarto above named has we observe been favorably received at dozen cups a-day), save when I shared come, and there is certainly no reason why pot-luck with the natives, and had an its reception should not be cordial whereever there is a lover of Shetland or of the sterner aspects of natural scenery. All Shetlanders, as well as lovers of the rough, bliffy islands ought to possess themselves of this, the only perfect panorams and sketchbook of the grand scenery found far beyond John o' Groat. We learn that the author is a young artist of promise, and should be inclined to judge, from the result of his of his labors, that he has fully justified the

by a correspondent of the Recorder :--I fear that our houses will fare worse than ourselves. Nearly all the boundary walls have fallen already to the rest mus follow as the water retires Many of the alatial residences which adorn the settlement are materially and permanently injured, and some of them will have to be taken down without delay. The amount of damage done will not appear fully till the water has fallen some feet below the resent mark. Everywhere the foundstions are sinking, and the walls showing portentous signs. Though most of the stone foundations are high and well vet the ground is so treacherous, and the piles not so fast ou account of the annual rise and fall of the river that the strongest artificial basis avails but little. We shall be compelled to devise and adopt a new plan of building, better suited to the conditions which Hankow presents. But if our condition as foreigners is bad, that of the natives is far worse. Thousands of native houses have been rendered uninhabitable, and tens of thousands of the poorest of the people have been driven from their homes. Some have taken refuge on the walls of the cities, and others on the neighbouring hills. From these heights meny can see the roofs of their miserable huts just peeping through their waters grave. Others look in vain for their former abodes, the flood having swallowed hem up, and, for the present, obliterated every trace of their existence. Most cling the seaboard. to their cots the last moment, By means of raised board and piled up tables and benches, they contrive to live with several fest of water inside their houses. Confined to a very contracted space hetween the water and the roof, you see them sometimes moving in their double, and sometimes crawling on all fours as if they were so many quadrupeds. Here and there faithful dog may be seen perched on the to account for this new thing which has next. The gods, too, are in a sad state. The worshippers being, apparently, disgust ed with the carelessness or impotency their divine protectors, have abandoned them to their fate. It is wonderful, too, how patiently and good humoredly the Chinaman endures this great calamity. There he is in a state of half nudity, laughing, punning, smoking, sipping tea, and merry making as if nothing strange had happened to him. In England an event of this kind would elicit a universal wail of distress. Here it creates but a slight sensation. The Chinaman seems to think that this calamity, like all others, must come and go; and that when it has done its work, it will leave him pretty much in the same condition as it found him. Two years bence there will be no trace of it. In the mean time he has his bowl of rice, and pipe of tobacco, and in possession of these, with a tolerable appetite, he cares for neither life nor death. As to his mud and straw huts, he will run them up faster than the flood pulled them down. He will soon be in a position to make his two or three hundred cash a day. Tales of voyages and shipwrecks, and of hair-breadth escapes on returning from the haaf, are told; and after a late but plentiful supper, they separate.

The wedding even at the bride's house is a day of great bustle and preparation. Two women are employed from morning till morning baking oatmeal cakes vast ones, about three feet in circumference, and out in halves, -care being taken, in setting them on the wedding-table, to have their out edges next the fire. The men are engaged in bringing home sheep from the hill, and slaughtering them; and the voung women in cleaning up the house, and putting the finishing touches to their caps and dresses. The "best man" must sleep with the bridegroom on the wedding-even. About six o'clock, the "aff-gang," or bridegroom's breakfast, is put on the table, and his men, who have been invited, assemble; and about the same time the bride's maidens, twelve or fifteen in number, meet at her house. Breakfast over at the bridegroom's (generally a work of three hours), he and his men walk to the bride's house, draw up in line before the door, and fire a shot The door is shut, and no response is made A second shot is fired: still silence. After a third shot, the door is opened, and the bride, leading all her maideus in single file, walks to the spot where the bridegroom and his men are standing, when every lad must kiss every lass. On re-entering the house, an ancient and peculiar spot where the bridegroom is standing but turns to the left, and goes so as to form a half-circle, following the course of the sun; and on re-entering, the circle is completed.
